

Overview:

The Missouri Department of Revenue (department) approached planning for fiscal year 2004 with a keen sense of the urgency for systemic strategic planning. The department conducted a series of planning meetings with leadership representatives from throughout the department to determine department priorities. Maintaining focus on these priorities will maximize the return on investment for the state of Missouri. Leadership looked globally at the department, its products and services, its interdependent relationships with other agencies, and the interdependencies within its operation. The department selected the arch to visually communicate these interdependencies – each piece is necessary and supports the others; if one piece falls, the entire arch collapses.

Key products and services were selected based on their role in fulfilling the department's role of collecting revenue to fund state government operations. It is in its capacity as the chief collector of revenue that the department supports the Governor's Managing for Results Initiative through funding the operation of its sister agencies. In fiscal year 2002, the department collected $7.1 billion or 97 percent of state general revenue and $2.5 billion in other state funds. In addition, the department collected for and distributed to Missouri cities, counties, and other political subdivisions about $1.9 billion of non-state funds.

The department's strategic plan focuses on the outcomes, key products, and strategic issues of the department. Each of the four outcomes has at least one measurement with three or four years of historical data. Measures, targets, and strategies have been developed for key products and strategic issues. By focusing on these priority areas, the department has been able to achieve efficiencies in its processes and deliver its products to its customers, the citizens of Missouri, more timely and with less hassle. Continuing this focus is expected to achieve similar results during this planning period.

Outcomes:

The department identified four outcomes that are key to measuring its success in meeting the needs and expectations of Missouri citizens. The Division of Taxation and Collection and the Division of Motor Vehicle and Drivers Licensing identified measures for each outcome.

Increased Customer Satisfaction is an indicator of how well we are serving the citizens of Missouri in the delivery of the department's key products of individual income tax filing, motor vehicle registration, driver license issuance, and sales tax filings.

Increased Voluntary Compliance measures the department's effectiveness in educating its customers on the importance of complying with laws and regulations and how effective the department is in delivering its key products so that citizens register and file voluntarily.

Decreased Cost of Compliance seeks to continually reduce the cost of government to the citizens. This includes both the cost to do business with the department (customer time and cost) and the cost to operate the department (state's cost). The department continuously examines its processes to eliminate all non-value added time and effort.

Increased Quality Performance focuses on the quality of the work done by the department's teams and how well these processes are functioning. In this area, the teams identify root causes of errors and implement solutions to eliminate them. This can range from a process improvement to specific job training for employees.

Outcome Measures:

Increased Customer Satisfaction

- Time a customer spends annually for vehicle registration, personal income tax filing, driver license issuance, and average annual time a business spends to file sales tax returns

Increased Voluntary Compliance

- Percent of vehicle registrations, personal income tax filings, and sales tax returns completed accurately, correctly, and timely

Note: Sales tax data for FY 99 and FY 00 not available.

Decreased Cost of Compliance

- Cost of time and fees a customer spends annually for vehicle registration, personal income tax filing, driver license issuance, and the average annual cost of time a business spends to file sales tax returns; plus the department's annual cost

- Percent of time driver license renewal notifications mailed on time

Future measures

Strategic Issues:

Strategic issues identified in this plan are key to the department meeting customer expectations and providing a working environment for employees that is conducive to their professional and personal development.

Coupling strategic issues with key products enables the department to take a micro and macro look at its performance. A sponsor is assigned to each strategic issue and a team is formed to research, analyze, and develop recommendations to enhance the department's performance.

The measures, targets, and strategies for strategic issues are not as developed as those for key products. This is only the second year the department has selected a sponsor and formed teams for each strategic issue. This is the first year in which measures will be established and tracked.

Key Operational Products:

Four years ago the department's two operating divisions identified key products in their areas. Since then, baseline data, benchmarks, targets, and strategies for these products have been researched and further developed each year. Leadership of the department, in partnership with product owners, analyzes the key product information quarterly to determine if the strategies in place are producing desired results or if corrective action is needed.

The department is beginning the dashboard approach to measurement this year. The product owners will utilize a broad set of measures on a daily or weekly basis to ensure their strategies and measures are appropriate. Monthly divisional meetings will be conducted with the division's director and deputy director to analyze key divisional measures. Department-wide reviews by senior leadership will be conducted quarterly. During these reviews, product owners will present data on volume, cycle time, yield, unit cost, and unit value measures. Challenges will be discussed and successes celebrated.

Maintaining focus on a few critical products provides assurance that the department is providing the best customer service to the citizens of Missouri while operating as efficiently as possible.

Key Support Products:

Four years ago the department's Division of Administration identified its key products that support the two operating divisions. Since then, baseline data, benchmarks, targets, and strategies for these products have been researched and further developed each year. Leadership of the department, in partnership with product owners, analyzes the key support product information quarterly to determine if the strategies in place are producing desired results or if corrective action is needed.

The department is beginning the dashboard approach to measurement this year. The product owners will utilize a broad set of measures on a daily or weekly basis to ensure their strategies and measures are appropriate. A monthly divisional meeting will be conducted with the division's director to analyze key divisional measures. Department-wide reviews by senior leadership will be conducted quarterly. During these reviews, product owners will present data on volume, cycle time, yield, unit cost, and unit value measures. Challenges will be discussed and successes celebrated.

Maintaining focus on a few of the products in the Division of Administration that are critical to the delivery of taxation, motor vehicle, and driver licensing products to the citizens of Missouri, provides assurance that the department is delivering the best service to the citizens of Missouri while operating as efficiently as possible.
